An examination of the company's financial documents covering a five-year period has raised questions about Ristau's spending habits. A review by The Telegram found: Ristau spent $423,315 on lunches for himself, alone, at hotels from April 2014 to August 2016. Between March 2014 and August 2016, Ristau's company spent $186,000 on a private chartered vehicle. The former company controller is now president of Endeavour Energy, a Vancouver company that is trying to buy Nalcor Energy's assets. Ristau's spending habits during that period are being investigated by British Columbia's Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner. (CBC) Former company executive Al Mangano, who is now chief executive of Endeavour Energy, is also under investigation by the Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner. Ristau defended his spending practices and said he signed off on the expenditures. "I have to say that what we did was appropriate, it was all approved, it was all in accordance with the arrangements for hospitality in Newfoundland and Labrador and what we had in place for our employees was in place
