I have tried this query, but this does not return anything. `$STH = $DBH->prepare(" select student.id, student.name, student.phone from student where student.id = (SELECT phone.id from phone WHERE student.id = :id)");` `$STH->execute(array(':id' => $_POST['id']));` I have got the id of the student, now I just need to check if the id exist in the table i.e. student table and if it exist the phone number in the same row. But we want to isolate what is going on in the specific implementation. To do that, we want to turn off the nice linear algebra calculations and see how far we can get with a linear regression. The simplest thing we can do is to run PCA in a distributed fashion, with each worker receiving a copy of the (m,n) and (m, Lancelot Megaw Lieutenant Lancelot Megaw VC (15 August 1883 – 21 September 1917) was a Scottish recipient of the Victoria Cross, the highest and most prestigious award for gallantry in the face of the enemy that can be awarded to British and Commonwealth forces. He was born in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, the son of a pig merchant and was educated at Sedbergh School. He later worked as a mechanical engineer. Megaw joined the 2nd Royal Scots Fusiliers (later the Royal Scots Regiment) as a private in March 1900. He was promoted to corporal on 18 October 1901, to sergeant on 18 March 1905, to lance corporal on 3 November 1906, and to full corporal on 22 March 1907. During the Second Boer War he was wounded in the face at Vredefort in July 1900. In February 1901 he was part of the British Army force that drove Boer forces from an area of South Africa and captured Rustenburg, culminating in the relief of Ladysmith. When the First World War began, Megaw was promoted to private on 23 August 1914 and was attached to the 4th Battalion, Royal Scots. On 6 September 1915 in Neuve Chapelle, France, Lance Corporal Megaw was part of a small group of men engaged in trench raiding, during an attack on the front lines of the German army. At around midnight, the trench raiders were ordered to retreat. They moved back to their own lines, but instead of taking the newly captured German trenches, they took the fire trench they had just captured. Megaw and one other were then ordered to go back to the front lines. Here, Megaw was wounded in the head while discharging his rifle. His head was bleeding profusely and a hole was blown in the side of his helmet, but Megaw continued to fire at the enemy, and was killed when he was shot through the heart. He was 34 years old at the time of his death. He is buried in Gravesend Cemetery, Kent, and his name is engraved on Panel 44 of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission cemetery at Passchendaele. Lancelot Megaw Memorial School is in Killingworth, Newcastle upon Tyne, England.
