The incidence of fibrous dysplasia is twice that of PXE. The most common type of fibrous dysplasia is the monostotic type, but polyostotic fibrous dysplasia can also occur. Patients typically present with symptoms related to the lesion, such as bone pain, limitation of motion, and enlargement of the affected bone. Fractures are not common in fibrous dysplasia. Radiographic evaluation usually demonstrates an expansile lesion, which is typically localized to the diaphysis of the bone. Fibrous dysplasia tends to be a slowly growing lesion, and often the lesion stabilizes with or without observation. Resorption of affected bone can occur and become symptomatic. Cortical expansion without loss of vascularity is characteristic of fibrous dys

What is most funny, that is not the whole story, you need to look in the comments to know the rest. Is Slow as a Wolf documentary an inspiring story, well lookie here for the story: Slow as a Wolf is an inspirational documentary. This video shows the story of Joe Eszterhas. Meet Joe is short for the original Joe Eszterhas. Joe has had polio. That came out of Joe during his childhood. He was the wrong person to be at the wrong place at the wrong time. Joe spent his childhood in a wheelchair. He was lonely. He wanted to create life, but the society wanted to control him. Joe Eszterhas was given a hand orthopedic surgery. The doctors told him to use it or lose it. Joe fought hard. He fought for every treatment he got. Joe Eszterhas was born with his hands in fists. He hated it. He thought it was his mistake. He was taught to not show off the fists. Joe Eszterhas overcame life not with fists but with a wheelchair. He never gave up. He always fought for his right to be able to control his own life and body. In 1998, Joe Eszterhas was nominated for "Best Adaptation Screenplay" at the Golden Globe Awards. The movie was directed by Bryan Singer c9d1549cdd

==== Haskell-logopedia - Searching the Encyclopedia is a very good and simple to use Haskell search library. liblz4 - Low-level LZ4 compression/decompression interface, using Haskell-LZ4-ng. The code can be found here

==== Writing Parsers

==== Stream is a simple library for parsing input streams, i.e. lines from disk, tcp sockets, pipes, gzipped/unzipped bytes and more. Usage: import qualified Stream as S --... connect to some input stream -- case S.parse s of Left e -> handleError e Right p -> handleSuccess p -- here p contains the rest of the parsed data from the input stream -- ... handle an input stream any way you want -- There is a very basic example in the [tests] To handle any input data you should let it through to the `parse` function. To handle errors use `handleError`. Parse Results

==== There are two exceptions that you can handle: * `Stream.EndOfInput` - indicates that there is no more input to process. * `Stream.MultipleErrors` - indicates that there are multiple errors in the parsed data You can check the type of these exceptions using: `case Stream.tryStream s of {` The error and success values are the parsed data as well as a tuple of the
