Does theory and practice conflict? An empirical study of conflict with nurses. The purpose of this study was to investigate if nurses who work in hospitals are experiencing conflict with other nurses, patients, patients' families, physicians, administrative staff, hospital management, and the hospital environment. In a descriptive, correlational, and quantitative design with qualitative content analysis, participants were 71 nurses working in general hospital wards in a Midwestern state. Using a conflict scale, conflict with patients, patients' families, and the hospital environment was significantly greater than conflict with other groups. Findings suggest that nurses have experienced more conflict with other patients than with their colleagues, patients' families, and the hospital environment. Nurses' perceptions of conflict may vary from objective measures and may change with time. Q: Zend Framework - How to get the current language I need help here. I would like to know how to get the current language for Zend Framework. I need it so I can change the language of the website. I would like to use the same language on my website but not sure how to do this. A: I would create a single view for each language. If you create a view for English I can't guarantee what that view's for other languages... So you may need to use a different view and do a simple switch on the controller. I would rather not have to do this but sadly some languages don't work out of the box with the MVC architecture. Tag Archives: allergies I bought the Snail Aero a week ago and really like it. The country could send teams to the Olympics and Paralympics and to the world hockey, football and rugby tournaments, according to Ford. "There's a real opportunity to build the game and to really make Scotland a powerhouse in sport," Ford said. "We have to be brave enough to embrace it." The first Commonwealth Games was staged in 1930 in Hamilton, with multi-sport events being introduced four years later. But there were warnings that Scotland, which is home to two-thirds of the athletes competing in this year's event, could struggle to attract sufficient support for its athletes. Ford suggested Commonwealth Games Scotland could help the country's major cities by developing new multi-purpose sports facilities, such as an ice rink and sports stadium. The minister said: "If we can demonstrate that there are opportunities for Scotland in developing sports and sports education then I think we've got a chance of building a great sporting nation." He added: "I want Scotland to be a sporting nation rather than a nation of individual sports. That's one of the reasons why I want Edinburgh to be the Olympic capital." Analysis Andrew Brown Scotland correspondent, BBC News Scotland has no legacy of any major sporting event which it can point to as a great achievement. It only won two gold medals at the 1972 Munich Games, and four at the last Games in New Delhi. There is a sense of disappointment that it has not yet recovered the bronze medal it won four years ago in Turin. Sports minister Mervyn Ford has done well to pick up the baton from the legacy department, but there are huge challenges for him ahead. He has to create a different mood in Scottish
