Html5 In 2016 Autodesk released an HTML5 drawing engine. The design of the HTML5 engine was a joint venture between Autodesk and Google, where the latter has patented the technology under "The Pixel Project". The DXF format is exported to HTML5 and implemented using 3D graphics. The export supports OpenGL and WebGL. AutoCAD does not use HTML5 as the underlying drawing engine, but instead has its own graphics engine that generates the HTML5 code. Compatibility with other CAD applications AutoCAD is compatible with other CAD applications. Several CAD applications run on Linux. FIFA17 / FUT 14: Will Neymar leave Barcelona in January? Although the transfer window is a few days away, most clubs are already trying to replace players that leave to find a new destination. Barca are no exception, and can their plans go according to schedule? Read the full article here.

Most of the pundits are saying that Neymar will leave Barcelona this January transfer window, but while he may have left the club as early as he could, the Brazilian star has not yet made any public statement regarding his future. He has however, been linked to Real Madrid, Juventus, PSG and the Etihad. Even though Neymar's problems with the club last season has not been addressed, he could be the one who causes havoc in the club. He has not renewed his contract with Barca, and has shown an interest in moving elsewhere. Juve have been heavily linked with the player, but if he did move there, would he replace Luis Suarez? It would have to be a big step, but the player would be a match for Didier Drogba, and would benefit the Juve attack as well as adding to the quality of the team. However, a move away from La Liga would be a tough one to take, and Juve may struggle to try and make a deal. PS
