To develop a rheumatoid arthritis (RA) functional index (FAI) to assess the functional impairment resulting from RA and compare the FAI with measures of physical and psychosocial impairment. Focus groups (n = 14) were conducted to identify items with clinical and psychosocial relevance. An expert panel with experience in RA research, practice, and patient care reviewed and modified the list of items and then selected an item set for an index that best represents the impairments of RA. To determine reliability, the FAI was administered to an additional 23 patients with RA. A standardized response variable was calculated (response mean [RM], standard deviation [SD], and coefficient of variation [CV]) and measured the agreement between the FAI and the Health Assessment Questionnaire-Disability Index (HAQ-DI), the 36-Item Short Form Health Survey (SF-36), the Arthritis Impact Measurement Scale-2 (AIMS2), and the Patient Global VAS. Four RA focus groups were conducted with 18 participants; no significant differences in age or sex were identified between the groups. Members of the expert panel selected 8 items with high face and content validity. The FAI had excellent internal consistency (Cronbach's  $\alpha$  of 0.92), good test-retest reliability (CV = 0.15, RM = 0.56 [HAQ-DI], 0.61 [SF-36], 0.62 [AIMS2], and 0.58 [Patient Global VAS]). The FAI score was strongly correlated with the HAQ-DI ( $r = 0.77$ ; P
